Bear Wishes It'd Known About the Toyota Recall

A bear got into an empty car, honked the horn, knocked the shifter into neutral and rolled 125 feet into a thicket, becoming trapped in the car when the door slammed shut. Ben Story, 17, of Larkspur, Colo., says a peanut butter sandwich left on the backseat of his 2008 Toyota Corolla probably attracted the bear early Friday. Police freed the animal by opening the door with a rope from a distance. It then ran into the woods. (AP)

Subprime Mortgage Crisis Hits Death Star Market

A robber dressed as Darth Vader made off with an undetermined amount of cash after pointing a handgun at tellers inside a Long Island, N.Y., bank Thursday. He wore a full head mask, a blue cape and camouflage pants. The only other description of the suspect was his height: between 6 feet and 6 feet 2 inches. (AP)

Obama Set For Major Action on Immigration

Washington

In a bid to remake the enforcement of federal immigration laws, the Obama administration is deporting record numbers of illegal immigrants and auditing hundreds of businesses that blithely hire undocumented workers.

The Immigration and Customs Enforcement agency anticipates deporting about 400,000 people this fiscal year, nearly 10 percent more than the Bush administration's 2008 total and 25 percent more than were deported in 2007. The pace of company audits has roughly quadrupled since Bush's final year in office.

The effort is part of President Obama's larger project "to make our national laws actually work," as he put it in a speech this month. Partly designed to entice Republicans to support comprehensive immigration reform, the mission is proving difficult and politically perilous.

Grave Errors From Top to Bottom

Arlington mistakes range from justices to unknown persons

Washington

From the graves of Supreme Court justices to a section for freed slaves, Arlington National Cemetery seems to have been egalitarian in its mistakes.

Although the cemetery is best known as a final resting place for veterans of the military, Section 27 holds the graves of former slaves, black Civil War soldiers and others whose tombstones read only "citizen" or "civilian" or "unknown."

The cemetery's master map shows one spot where 70 such graves are tightly packed in three rows. But a visitor there would find not a single tombstone, only a walkway and a rock-strewn drainage ditch.

Less than half a mile away at the busy heart of the cemetery, the tour guides point out "Justice Hill," where eight Supreme Court justices are buried. But the earthly success of its occupants has not immunized the hill from years of poor record-keeping.

In many cases, two of the VIPs are buried where the map says there is one. Another grave that appears on the map has no tombstone on the ground. And seven graves that appear empty on the map are marked and appear occupied.

Section 27 of Arlington Cemetery contains the graves of former slaves, black Civil War soldiers and other unidentified people.

Six weeks after the Army ousted Arlington's top two officials in a sweeping probe of the nation's most hallowed cemetery, The Washington Post found problems with more than 130 graves between one of its most high-profile sections and one of its least known.

In addition, an examination of thousands of pages of internal records and interviews with dozens of current and former Army employees reveal that the Army has launched multiple investigations into Arlington over the years. Not only did they turn up chronic problems with record-keeping, but they also revealed a dysfunctional management structure that operated with limited and fractured oversight, and a contracting system that appeared to operate outside the normal structure for the federal government. Again and again, attempts to correct the situation fell short.

Congressional investigators are now examining how far up the chain of command responsibility should lie and why, among other issues, cemetery officials frittered away at least $5 million for computer upgrades with little to show for it.

And the Army yet again is trying to fix a problem that it has known about for almost 20 years but has been unable to solve.

Reid’s ‘Serious Problem’

Bad economy could derail Dem leader in tight Nev. Senate race

Henderson, Nev.

Senate Democratic leader Harry Reid’s chances for six more years in Washington may be like tossing dice in a casino, even if he has made headway against Republican challenger Sharron Angle in a state with the nation’s highest rate of joblessness.

The four-term Reid holds a slight lead over Angle in the latest polling, thanks in part to her unsteady performance since winning the June primary and to Democratic ads portraying her as an extremist. Video of Angle scurrying away from reporters has mixed with television commercials of older voters upset about her call to phase out Social Security and Medicare.

But an internal memo obtained by The Associated Press says Reid has “a serious problem” with voters frustrated with the economy and “receives a great deal of blame.” The July 15 memo is based on polling research conducted for Patriot Majority, a union-funded group that is running TV ads against Angle.

The race is wide open, the memo concludes, despite Reid’s improved

Republican challenger Sharron

Angle is trying to recover from a rocky, sometimes embarrassing stretch in which she’s attempted to transform her mom-and-pop primary campaign into a multimillion-dollar general election operation. Her decision after winning the nomination to limit interviews to mostly conservative media outlets — many outside the state — has opened her to criticism that she fears scrutiny and is unprepared for Washington. standing and voters’ alarm over some of Angle’s positions.

“An even playing field is an improvement for Reid, as earlier surveys indicated a much more difficult path to re-election,” the memo says. The winner in November will be the candidate “who makes the more persuasive case that he, or she, is more dependable and can be counted on to deliver for Nevada in these tough economic times.”

When asked about his standing in the race, Reid on Saturday said he didn’t pay attention to fluctuating polls and cared only about the outcome on election day.

“The No. 1 problem we have in Nevada is jobs,” he said. (AP)

Iowa Flooding Causes Millions in Damage

Monticello, Iowa

Flooding from the Maquoketa River after an eastern Iowa dam failed has damaged dozens of homes and businesses, causing millions of dollars in damage in Monticello, a city official said Sunday.

The Lake Delhi dam failed Saturday as rising floodwater from the Maquoketa River ate a 30-foot-wide hole in it. Areas below the dam, including in Hopkinton and Monticello, were evacuated.

The historic Independence Mill in Independence, Iowa, is ravaged by floodwater.

The river crested upstream of the dam at Manchester early Saturday afternoon at 24.53 feet — more than 10 feet above flood stage and well above its 2004 record of 21.66 feet — before it began to slowly recede.

Monticello Public Works Director Dana Edwards said about 50 homes and 20 businesses had major flood damage, and the city's sewer plant had been flooded and shut down about 7 p.m. Saturday.

Most of the city's 3,700 residents could flush their toilets, but the waste was pouring into the river. Still, environmental damage shouldn't be great because the waste was being diluted by the floodwater, Edwards said. (AP)

STILL DEPRESSED?

Adult Major Depression Research Study: Novel Medication

If you (or someone you know) have been diagnosed with major depression, you may be able to participate in a National Institute of Mental Health research study investigating a novel medication. This treatment study is studying if a research medication can produce a rapid reduction of depressive symptoms in patients with treatment-resistant major depressive disorder.

This 7-week inpatient study is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, and compares the medication to a placebo (inactive salt solution). After completion of the study the participant will receive short-term treatment to transition back to the community. In addition, all research participation is without cost.

Those eligible to participate must:

- Be ages 18-65
- Have been diagnosed with major depression
- Have taken two antidepressants that did not help

Taliban: Missing Sailor Killed

Another captured in ambush; NATO, U.S. step up search

Kabul, Afghanistan

The Taliban claimed Sunday that they killed a U.S. sailor and kidnapped another as NATO forces ramped up a massive search for the servicemen.

U.S. and NATO officials confirmed that two American Navy personnel went missing Friday in the eastern province of Logar, after an armored vehicle was seen driving into a Taliban-held area. NATO officials were unable to say what they were doing in such a dangerous part of eastern Afghanistan.

Taliban spokesman Zabiullah Mujahid also said the pair drove into an area under insurgent control, prompting a brief gunfight in which one American was killed and the other was captured. He said both were taken to a "safe area" and "are in the hands of the Taliban."

The sailors' heavily reinforced white Land Cruiser has been recovered, according to a security official

Hundreds of posters of the two missing sailors, who were last seen Friday, have been hung at checkpoints throughout the Eastern province of Logar. U.S., S. Korea Engage in Joint 'War Games'

Military exercise meant as deterrent against North Korea

Tokyo

Taking their boldest step yet since the March sinking of the Cheonan warship, the United States and South Korea on Sunday began a massive joint military exercise designed to show off power and solidarity in a region divided by tensions.

The military muscle-flexing came after months of delays and revisions, and in spite of opposition from China and threats from North Korea.

The USS George Washington leaves Sunday from Busan, South Korea, for the exercise.

The so-called "war games" are customary drills for U.S. and South Korean forces. This operation, code-named "Invisible Spirit," involved substantial firepower — an intended deterrent against future reckless behavior from Pyongyang, U.S. officials said.

"The point of [the exercise] is, I think, to ensure that our relationship with the South is very strong ... and also send the message to the North Koreans that their behavior is completely counter to international norms, completely unacceptable," Adm. Mike Mullen, Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, said earlier in the week.

North Korea said Saturday it would counter the exercise with "powerful nuclear deterrence," but the first day of the four-day drills drew no further response.

North Korea has said the U.S.-South Korea joint exercise threatens the security of the region and has warned of a "retaliatory sacred war."

BP's Executive Decision

Source: CEO Tony Hayward will be replaced three months after Gulf oil spill

Backstory

The past months have not been kind to outgoing BP CEO Tony Hayward:

April 20

An explosion on BP's Deepwater Horizon rig kills 11 workers and unleashes a spill that would leak between 94 million and 184 million gallons of oil into the Gulf of Mexico.

April 30

BP Chief Executive Tony Hayward says the company takes full responsibility for the spill and would pay all legitimate claims and the cost of the cleanup.

May 28

Hayward flies over the Gulf.

May 30

Hayward tells reporters and Gulf residents: "There's no one who wants this over more than I do. I would like my life back."

WIN MCNAMEE/GETTY IMAGES

More than a month after appearing before Congress, BP Chief Executive Tony Hayward could be replaced as soon as Monday, according to various reports.

New Orleans

Gaffe-prone BP Chief Executive Tony Hayward — who incensed many on the Gulf Coast by saying he wanted his life back as they struggled with the fallout from the company's massive oil spill — will be replaced, a senior U.S. government official said Sunday.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because an announcement had not been made, was briefed on the decision by a senior BP official late last week.

Bloomberg reported that Managing Director Bob Dudley, who is currently overseeing the British company's spill response, will become the first American to take over the top spot at the company. BP's board would have to approve a change in company leadership. An official announcement could come as early as Monday.

It's been more than three months since an offshore drilling rig operated by BP exploded off Louisiana on April 20, killing 11 workers and setting off the spill. A temporary plug has stopped oil from gushing for more than a week now, but before that the busted well had spewed anywhere from 94 million to

"I think what the world expects from BP is an acknowledgment that something was done wrong. I think BP has a long way to go to gain the trust of the people."

— U.S. SEN. MARY LANDRIEU, D-LA., WHO SAID BP'S ATTITUDE ABOUT MAKING THINGS RIGHT IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN WHO IS RUNNING THE OIL COMPANY.

Meanwhile ...

The effort to plug BP's leaky oil well in the Gulf of Mexico was back on track Sunday as the skies cleared and crews raced to stop the gusher for good before another storm halts the operation again. A drill rig was reconnecting to the relief tunnel that will be used to pump in mud and cement to seal the well, and drilling could resume in the next few days, a BP spokesman said Sunday morning. A temporary plug has already held in the oil for nine days. (AP)

184 million gallons into the Gulf.

Since the explosion, Hayward has made several highly publicized gaffes. Among them: going to a yacht race while oil washed up on Gulf shores, and uttering the now-infamous: "I want my life back" line.

Oppenheimer & Co. senior analyst Fadel Gheit said in an interview Sunday that it was too bad Hayward's career was derailed by the spill, but "unfortunately, he became a sacrificial lamb in a politically charged world."

Dudley would be well-suited to take over, Gheit said, describing him as even-tempered and a good delegator. It's never an easy time to instill new leadership in a company, though, he noted. "I'm not sure if removing Tony Hayward is going to throw BP's problems away," Gheit said.

News that the CEO will depart came as no surprise to people living along the Gulf.

Patrick Shay, 43, sat on a porch swing of his cottage in Grand Isle on Sunday, his front yard filled with small white crosses, each bearing the name of sea life or ways of life the oil spill has killed.

"If anything, it will help," he said. "They need to get him out of the way and get this cleaned up." HARRY R. WEBER (AP)

Balancing Privacy and Profitability

Beyond advertising, monetizing Facebook is a delicate endeavor

User Utility

Facebook may be growing like gangbusters, but the question clouding the storybook rise of Silicon Valley's latest phenomenon is whether it can figure out how to make money at the same pace.

And although the social-networking site gets a daily flood of new users around the globe, Facebook's long-term success might be challenged by something at its heart: sharing information.

The site, which passed 500 million users last week, says it's generating enough revenue from advertising to cover its costs. The company is privately held but has its sights on going public one day. It doesn't charge its users, and chief executive Mark Zuckerberg said this week on ABC News that it never will. (Washington Post Co. Chairman Donald E. Graham sits on Facebook's board of directors).

Facebook.com founder Mark Zuckerberg's site just passed the 500 million user mark.

“The more information they make available to outside networks, the more monetization they have.”

— ANALYST JEREMIAH OWYANG, ON FACEBOOK'S STRUGGLE BETWEEN MAINTAINING USERS' PRIVACY AND NEW WAYS TO MAKE MONEY

Facebook's lifeblood is the exchange of information — people making more online friends and trading more pictures, news stories, music and one-line mood updates — which also happens to be sheer gold for advertisers. Experts say the company treads a delicate line in getting its users to share more information without alienating them through overexposure.

“Facebook is in a conundrum,” said Jeremiah Owyang, an industry analyst at San Francisco-based Altimeter Group. “The promise they've made is to be closed, or restricted, on who can see what. But the more information they make available to outside networks, the more monetization they have.”

Facebook, meanwhile, says its business strategy doesn't rely on selling information about its users. The company says it doesn't give user data directly to advertisers but instead places ads from its partners on the pages of users based on its own analysis of aggregated demographic information.

When the firm shifted its policy on user information in December, exposing some data about users more broadly on the Web, critics said the move was intended to generate more revenue from advertisers who want to tailor ads to specific profiles of Facebook users.

“There's a big misperception that we're making these changes for advertising,” Zuckerberg said on a media call this year, when the company announced it was dialing back some of the changes. “Anyone who knows me knows that that's crazy.” CECILIA KANG (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Despite Efforts, Federal Deficit Still Increasing

Washington

The federal budget deficit, which hit a record $1.4 trillion last year, will exceed that figure this year and again in 2011, the White House predicted Friday, providing fresh ammunition to Republicans who are hammering President Obama for all the red ink as they campaign to regain control of Congress in November. The latest forecast from the White House budget office shows the deficit rising to $1.47 trillion this year, forcing the government to borrow 41 cents of every dollar it spends. The gap will not begin to narrow much in 2011, because of a drop in tax receipts.

White House budget director Peter Orszag said in a conference call with reporters that Obama is still on track to cut the deficit in half by the end of his first term. LORI MONTGOMERY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Scouts Honor 100th Anniversary

Group holds parade before gathering at national jamboree

Washington

The Boy Scouts of America are preparing to celebrate their 100th anniversary with the national jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, about an hour south of the nation's capital.

More than 46,000 Boy Scouts, leaders, staff and volunteers from around the world are expected at the National Scout Jamboree starting Monday in Caroline County. Organizers also anticipate about 250,000 visitors.

Boy Scouts march on the National Mall in the Grand Centennial Parade on Sunday.

For 10 days, Scouts ages 12 to 18 will spend their time participating in archery, fishing and other events such as geocaching, a GPS-based scavenger hunt. Other events include skeet shooting, robotics and a chance for Scouts to analyze a sample of their own DNA.

The organization held the Boy Scouts Grand Centennial Parade Sunday on Constitution Avenue to commemorate a century of scouting. The parade featured seven custom-made parade floats, including five representing the core principles of scouting: achievement, character, community service, leadership and the great outdoors.

Organizers said it was the biggest gathering of scouts in the nation's capital since 1937, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt invited the Boy Scouts to hold the first national jamboree on the National Mall. (AP)

Brewers Ruin Detwiler's Return

Pitcher's first start since injury marred by costly fielding errors

The Nationals

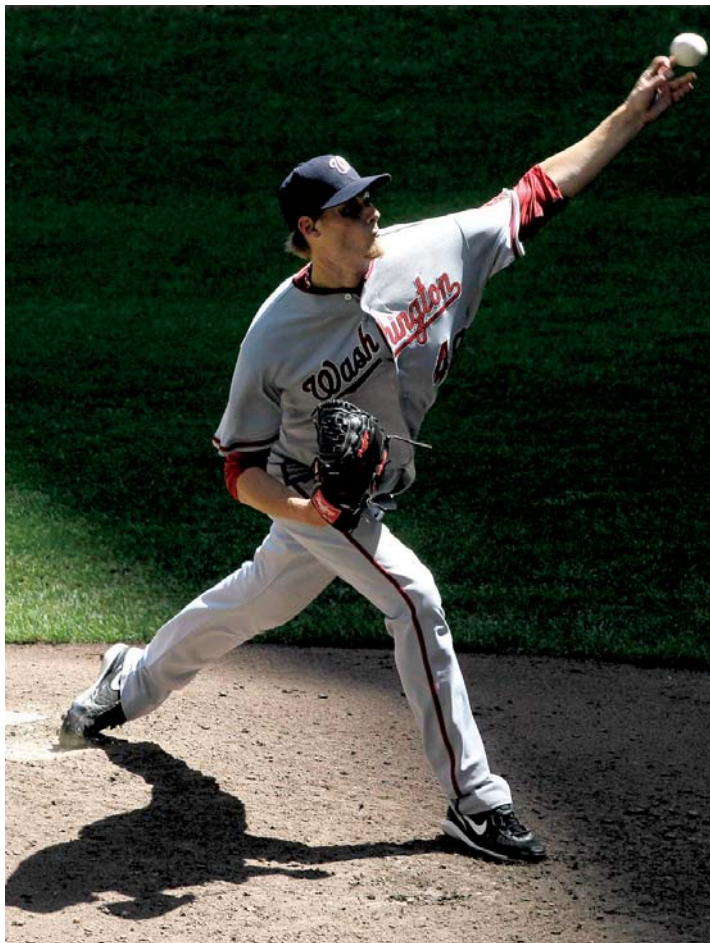

Casey McGehee and Rickie Weeks homered and the Milwaukee Brewers scored five unearned runs off starter Ross Detwiler in beating the Washington Nationals 8-3 Sunday to complete a three-game sweep.

Detwiler, making his first major league start after hip surgery in February, didn't allow an earned run, but didn't make it out of the fourth inning.

Washington leads the majors with 80 errors, and the Brewers made sure both errors Sunday — from Willie Harris, playing third base for the resting Ryan Zimmerman, and Ian Desmond — were costly in their fourth-straight win.

Milwaukee took a 2-0 lead on Jonathan Lucroy's RBI single and a wild pitch by Detwiler (0-1) after third baseman Willie Harris misplayed a grounder.

In the fourth, shortstop Ian Desmond bobbled Dave Bush's two-out roller and threw it away, allowing Lucroy to score. Weeks chased Detwiler with his two-run homer that made it 5-0. Des-

Rotation Shuffling

With J.D. Martin heading to the disabled list, the Nationals will need to find a starting pitcher for Friday's game against the Phillies. Manager Jim Riggleman said the starter will come from the Nationals' 40-man roster. Four minor league starters are currently on the 40-man: Matt Chico, John Lannan and Shairon Martins of Class AAA Syracuse; and Aaron Thompson of Class AA Harrisburg. Chico's schedule aligns best, and the lefty has earned only three runs in his last 21 innings. (rwp) the seventh off Joel Peralta gave the Brewers an 8-3 lead. Leading 5-0, Bush allowed a sacrifice fly to Josh Willingham and a two-out, run-scoring single to Adam Dunn. After a double by Alberto Gonzalez put runners on second and third, Ivan Rodriguez flied out to the warning track to end the inning. Bush pitched to just one batter in the seventh, leaving after Adam Kennedy's single.

Kennedy later scored on Nyjer Morgan's single off Kameron Loe to make it 5-3, but McGehee answered in the bottom of the inning with his three-run bomb, putting the game out of reach for the struggling Nationals. COLIN FLY (AP)

Herzog, Dawson Lead Hall Of Fame Class

Pro Baseball

Former St. Louis Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog has been inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

The 78-year-old Herzog, who played eight seasons as a first baseman and outfielder before moving to the front office, is just the 19th major league manager to be inducted.

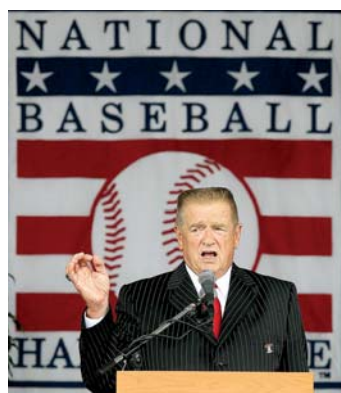

Herzog managed for 18 seasons, 11 with the Cardinals after stints in Texas, California and Kansas City.

He guided the Royals to three-consecutive playoff appearances in the 1970s and guided the Cardinals to the 1982 World Series title just two years after he was hired.

The Cards also made World Series appearances in 1985 and 1987 under Herzog, who finished his managing career in 1990 with a record of 1,279-1,123, a .532 winning percentage.

Herzog was joined by fellow 2010 inductees Andre Dawson and Doug Harvey.

Dawson, elected as an Expo, belted 438 home runs and knocked in 1591 RBI during his 21-year career, and was the 1987 NL MVP.

Harvey umpired 4,673 games during his 31-year tenure in the big leagues, earning the nickname "God."

Said Herzog, "Ever since I was elected in December, people have asked, 'What's it feel like to be a Hall of Famer?'"

"Now I can tell you what it feels like. It feels like going to heaven before you die." (AP)

Tour de France

Alberto Contador stood atop the podium at the Tour de France on Sunday for the third time in four years, struggling to rein in his emotions as Spain's national anthem echoed across the wide boulevard of the Champs-Élysées.

Off to one side, Lance Armstrong applauded and then, without much fanfare, headed toward the exit.

"I need a cold beer," Armstrong said when asked his thoughts at the finish line.

Rarely has the emergence of a sport's newest superstar dovetailed so neatly with the departure of the last one.

Contador held off a next-to-last day challenge from Andy Schleck of Luxembourg, his runner-up for a second-consecu-

Booze Clues

Or, 'Week of Beer'

Don't get me wrong: I love dark sports bars with objectively unappetizing beer on tap, but it's nice to see the Ventnor Sports Cafe (2411 18th St. NW) tarting itself up for an event with the imaginative name "Beer Week." The taps that have been home to Miller Lite will glow anew with American craft brews. Bells and Dogfish Head beers will spew forth like the fountain of youth, and the rejoicing masses will pay $4 for each beer and $12 for each pitcher through Aug. 1, and Thor will probably show up with his glowing hammer and shield of righteousness and I have GOT to stop reading Norse mythology before writing this. Of course, if Yuengling is your thing, you can just wait a week and Ventnor will be back to normal. Well, not quite: On Aug. 2, Barbecue Week begins, with a $19 all-you-can-eat deal on smoked meaty goodness.

By Fiona Zublin

A Drinkable Feast
Not quite in time for Ernest Hemingway's birthday last week, Cafe Atlantico (405 8th St. NW) has introduced a new cocktail menu. The list includes not only twists on the Nobel winner's favorite drinks, such as the mojito and the pisco sour, but also something called the Old Man and the Sea, which involves hibiscus-infused rum and lime juice. We're not sure what that has to do with old men or the sea, and we ARE sure that Hemingway would have punched anyone who gave him hibiscus-infused rum, but it sounds pretty delicious to us.

Fun With Mel

Talk shows, Twitter and YouTube are awash in send-ups of the Gibson rant

Phenomenon

Ever since Radaronline.com began to release audio recordings purportedly of Mel Gibson, the tapes have been used for comedy fodder across the Internet, inspiring remixes, mash-ups and an endless stream of tweets.

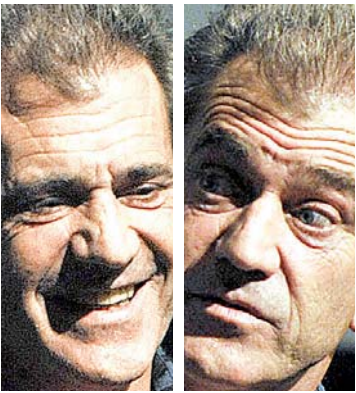

"It's the gift that keeps on giving," says Justin Stangel, who, with his brother Eric, is co-head writer and executive producer of "Late Show With David Letterman." "His tapes are so crazy, there's new areas to deal with every day. It's fantastic. They really should have saved it for sweeps," Stangel said.

"We always try to focus on: This is A-list celebrity Mel Gibson losing his mind," says Justin Stangel. "It's such a big story that you have to make jokes about it, but you're not going to make jokes about some of the grim things that may or may not have been going on."

Gibson has also been one of the most popular subjects on Twitter over the past 10 days. Reaction has gone from shock to outrage and finally to belittling.

Dane Cook has said he's going as Gibson for Halloween this year. Michael Ian Black had a one-word

One popular online video, created by Nick Bosworth of the YouTube channel MovieGodsLive, combines Christian Bale's 2009 "Terminator Salvation" tirade with Gibson's meltdown. More than 800,000 have watched it. (AP) suggestion for the actor: "Podcasts." Bill Maher mused that watching "What Women Want," the 2000 film Gibson starred in, "just feels different now."

One of the most common subjects to lump with Gibson has been the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico. "BP has successfully placed a containment cap on Mel Gibson although there have been reports of some n-word seepage," tweeted comedian Kevin Nealon.

Several mock Twitter feeds have been started. The "Real Mel Gibson" has about 14,000 followers.

Others have taken the tapes into their own hands. One online video fuses the Gibson audio with "Grand Theft Auto" video game character Niko Bellic. Gibson has also yelled at Drew Barrymore's character on the phone in "Scream." The radio show "Opie & Anthony" added Gibson into "The Shining."

Los Angeles police are still attempting to authenticate the recordings.

But when it comes to a celebrity doing something terrible, the Web seldom waits. JAKE COYLE (AP)

1 Sad Senior Moments

Respected Arab news network Al-Jazeera is sponsoring a screening of its documentary "Dying Inside: Elderly in Prison," about aged prisoners around the world and the difficulties involved in caring for them. After the movie, there will be a Q&A with the program's host and producer. Busboys and Poets, 2021 14th St. NW; 8 p.m., free; RSVP to Americas@aljazeera.net. (U St.-Cardozo)

2 Take a Sad Song

Can you believe there are people who don't like the Beatles? We prefer to believe that those people are just being contrary: They don't dislike the Beatles, they dislike joining the crowd. Anyway, if you want to go beyond listening to "Penny Lane" again, tonight, Richie Unterberger will be playing rare films and recordings of the Fab Four and speaking about his book, "The Unreleased Beatles." Arlington Central Library, 1015 N. Quincy St., Arlington; 6:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m., free; 703-228-5990. (Ballston)

3 Stick It to The Bard

Each year, Taffety Punk's Bootleg Shakespeare event brings together a full cast to put on a play with virtually no rehearsal. This year it's "Two Noble Kinsmen," which was written at least in part by the Bard, though these things are disputed. Folks gather the morning of the performance, go over the basics and do the show that night. Sure, it's unpolished, but it's worth it to see a non-pompous Shakespeare production. Folger Shakespeare Theater, 201 East Capitol St. SE; 7 p.m., free; 202-261-6612, Taffetypunk.com. Sam Greene, Katalina Mayorga

SAM, 25, IS A PROGRAM MANAGER FOR THE GOVERNMENT. KATALINA, 25, IS A PROGRAM COORDINATOR. THEY LIVE IN D.C. AND WILL MARRY AUG. 6 IN CARTAGENA, COLOMBIA.

THE MAIN EVENT: Both the ceremony and reception are at a colonial house in Cartagena, Colombia, where Kata's family is from. She will walk down the aisle to "Solamente Una Vez" (Only One Time), her grandparents' favorite.

HOW THEY MET: At a party before they both graduated from college and she left for a long trip through Central America. Looking for a way to test his interest, she suggested they go on a jog at 4 a.m. "He passed with flying colors."

FIRST DATE: Their 4 a.m. jog.

FIRST KISS: On her 22nd birthday, "at a toga party at a bar that didn't know we were having a toga party," Kata says.

HOW HE PROPOSED: At home, with a ring he'd designed himself. "She began crying, and I did not get a clear 'yes' until about 10 minutes later ... probably the worst 10 minutes of my life."

CELEBRATING HERITAGE: They're incorporating Colombian songs, a poem Kata's grandmother wrote and "lots of aguardiente [strong, anise-flavored liqueur] and whiskey," Kata says.

WITH INFINITE FUNDS: "I would have a dozen doves released every time we entered a room," Sam says.

Melanie Blanchard, Rodney Morris

MELANIE, 27, IS A MUSEUM PROFESSIONAL. RODNEY, 33, IS AN ATTORNEY. THEY LIVE IN ALEXANDRIA.

THE MAIN EVENT: Aug. 7 in Alexandria. The former singles minister from their church will officiate.

HONEYMOON: The Canadian Rockies.

HOW THEY MET: In a singles class at their church in Alexandria. "Rodney was the first person to introduce himself to me on my first day. When I saw him again two weeks later, I was impressed that Rodney remembered so much about our first meeting."

FIRST DATE: Jazz in the Garden in D.C. They'd stopped at Chipotle beforehand to grab some food. "After spilling some of my burrito on my white shirt, I realized that Chipotle was not a great choice for a first date," Rodney says.

HOW HE PROPOSED: On a Sunday afternoon, before they went for a walk. Before heading out, Rodney got down on one knee, saying Melanie needed a new "accessory." He then pulled out the ring.

THEIR SONG: Frank Sinatra's "You Make Me Feel So Young," "because it describes us perfectly," Melanie says.

MAKING IT UNIQUE: Rodney will dress in a pinstripe suit and custom Chuck Taylors; Melanie will wear a white dress and purple suede shoes.

Clare Berke, Michael Sigrist

CLARE, 26, IS A HIGH SCHOOL ENGLISH TEACHER. MICHAEL, 33, IS A COLLEGE PHILOSOPHY PROFESSOR. THEY LIVE IN D.C.

THE MAIN EVENT: An Aug. 7 wedding in Boulder, Colo. Clare's father, a pastor, will officiate. It's Boulder, so "there will be some cowboy boots," Clare says.

HOW THEY MET: In the Real Original Jumbo Slice in Adams Morgan. "I had only been in D.C. a little while; I did not understand that a jumbo slice was, in fact, jumbo. I ordered an entire sausage pizza." He invited Clare to help him eat it, and they managed to finish the whole thing.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS: "She was a very approachable, cute girl with a warm smile who looked like she would enjoy a sausage pizza."

FIRST DATE: Drinks and "The Illusionist." They liked the date better than the film.

HOW HE PROPOSED: Behind the Sacré Coeur in Montmartre, Paris.

WHEN HE KNEW: When she joined him on his "stupid adventure" climbing up a "craggy and algae-ridden waterfall for no reason whatsoever other than to have accomplished something together."

WEDDING JITTERS: Clare's afraid of "forgetting certain details like how to get ourselves to the reception. Who wouldn't pick up bride and groom hitchhikers, though, right?"

B.I.O.

By Invitation Only If you'd like to see your wedding or commitment ceremony in B.I.O., send your favorite informal photograph (wacky is fine, but please don't send a formal engagement shot), plus your names and ceremony date to weddings@readexpress.com. Please contact us at least one month before your wedding. We'll get back to you with questions.

Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be getting a late start, but once you begin you should be able to work at a faster pace than usual and meet all deadlines.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You know how to get people talking, and you can do so — even if they hail from two very different sides of the tracks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Your expectations are not likely to be met, but that isn't necessarily a bad thing. Indeed, circumstances may exceed your vision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may find yourself wishing that things were as they were some time ago, but you'll be reminded that they weren't always that great.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You and a loved one needn't say much to share some important time together. Getting your own work done side by side can be a joy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A collaboration of sorts comes close to falling apart. Are you at fault? You will want to be sure that your communication is clear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Tally the score and you'll realize that you're still in the game, though you must come up with a few remarkable plays to win.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Metaphors and symbols are everywhere, and you'll be receptive to all such meaningful messages, be they readily apparent or hidden out of sight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) That which is not immediately discernible is likely to be the most important thing for you. Take the time to assess all gains.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your connection to someone rich and famous may not be clear at first, but you will soon realize that you and he or she have much in common.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your behavior needn't make much sense to others as long as it makes sense to you and comes from a place of genuine commitment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend is able to tip the scales a bit and have you making an important decision in his or her favor. Don't take things too seriously.
